EGYPT.

WRITTEN POR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, BY AGNES SOUTHARD.

Egypt came to us in a very mysterious manner, on the morning of Dec. 14, 1888, when the little town of Wahkeshma, Vt., was iron bound with snow, the result of a three days' heavy storm. I had risen much earlier than usual, with the intention of clearing the walks before breakfast. I opened the front door and found her lying in a huddled heap on the porch, with her upturned face as still and as white as the snow flakes which it pressed.

From that day she became a resident in our hum-de home. My mother and the dear little grandmother adored her, and I-poor, foolish fellow-would have cheerfully died for her.

We called her Egypt, because, with her dark hair and eyes, she was very like a wanderer from the banks of the historic Nile, and we did not know her name. In fact, we knew nothing at all about her, and that was all sufficient.

She was not beautiful, if regular features constitute beauty, but she had the finest face I ever saw. I never looked at her without recalling this little fragment from "Lucile:'

"Some faces show the last act of a tragedy in their ough the first scenes be wanting, it yet is not hard To divine, more or less what the plot may have been, And what sort of actors have passed o'er the scene."

That Egypt had a history, and a sad one, we never doubted; but what that history was we never sought

She was very fair and fragile, and day after day she would lie on a sofa before the open grate, with her thin hands crossed on her bosom, and her mournful dark eyes bent on the fire, as though seeking to read in the glowing coals some part of a past

We tried to put the thought from us that she was rapidly failing, and that the thread of human life would seen slip from her feeble hold.

Egypt dead! What would life be to me, Kenneth Aubyn, without her? I was only twenty-three, and I loved her with all the warmth and trevor of a first real passion. But I did not tell her of my love. I knew she would never be more to me than a friend yet, with all a lover's dread, I would have given my life rather than have had her told me so.

"Kenneth," she said, one evening, abruptly breaking the silence that had lasted for more than an hour, "will you bring me my ebony casket,

I obeyed with alacrity, and, on handing it to her, was surprised to find she intended opening it. On the morning when I had first found her lying on our porch, she had held this same casket tightly clutched in her stiffened fingers. Many times since then, pursuant to her request, I had brought it to her from the little shelf in her room on which it always stood, but never to my positive knowledge and she evinced the slightest disposition to open it. Now, to my amazement and relief—for I confess the contents of that mysterious box had often puzzied me greatly—she drew a tiny key from her bosom, and inserted it in the lock. The little lid, curiously carved and studded with gems, flew back, revealing a quantity of pink cotton. This I eyed attentively for a moment, vaguely wondering what it covered; then, quite suddenly, an unnac countable sensation of dread scized me, and, grasping her hand, I cried imploringly:

lover. It is growing very dark, Kenneth, and the wick in that lamp needs trimming. Ah! 'twas the old, old story. He was handsome, and I-I-It at so cold, Kenneth. Stir the fire please, and bend lower, I cannot see your face. The little casket take it-'twill tell you all. Give me your hand, so;

Her voice died away in a sobbing sigh, and pres ently the death rattle sounded in her throat, a gasped once—twice—thrice. Then all was still!
Egypt was dead!

I rushed to the door, and called loudly for help. My mother and grandmother came hurrying in, with white, scared faces. I pointed to the slender figure on the couch, and, grasping the little casket-

I clenched my hands convulsively, and the veins swelled like whip cords on my forehead.

One by one I placed those things, which to Egypt had been treasures, back into the casket, and closed and locked it. We buried her on Thursday, and the ebony box was in her coffin. As the men were filling up the grave, I tossed the key belonging to it among the clods of earth, and turning away, heart sick, soul weary, I thanked God the secret of her life was buried with her.

friends, while retaining her hosts of old admirers. Her recent tours in "The Waifs of New York" have proved quite successful, and she is still traveling in that piece, under Harry M. Williams' management.

"STOICISM."

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER

Let nothing phase thee. The river of time silently floweth;

What does it bring? Sunshine and shadow, sorrow and laughter Alike to the peasant and the king. Hast thou been wronged?

Thou art not the first-Who has not tasted Of treachery's cup!

Life is but a day, and thee and the wronger May lie side by side When thy day is up.

Art thou unhappy? Cease to remember, forget all but what Seemeth good to thy soul.

Neither crushed by the present or fearing the future, Prepare for the last gate-

Make ready thy toll. EARLE REMINGTON.

SARDOU AND "CLEOPATRA."

It is not altogether fair to credit Victorien Sardon with the entire authorship of "Cleopatra," as is generally done in the public mind, for he has a collaborateur in the person of Emile Moreau, who, in-deed, is chiefly responsible for the writing of the play at all. Nor did the idea originate with either of the two Frenchmen who have carried it into execution. It was suggested first to Sarah Bernhardt by Henry E. Abbey, during her last tour in this country. There was a Cleopatra rage, so to speak, in America at that time. It opened Mr. Abbey's eyes to the possibilities of the part in the hands of an artist like Bernhardt, and he at once suggested to her the creation of a Cleopatra. The idea struck the actress favorably, but she had no notion of playing Shake-speare. She must have a Cleopatra of her own, and Sardou must provide it, and the minute she encountered the famous French playwright in Paris, the morning after the production of "La Tosca," she astonished him with the peremptory order: "Make me a Cleopatra. Don't let me leave Prance again without a Cleopatra."

"But," replied the surprised author, "a Cleopatra is not the work of an instant. I have never thought of the subject. Give me time to consider it. We will see what can be done."

This was not in harmony with the feelings of the impatient artist. She kept importuning Sardou with the one demand—"Give me a Cleopatra." Sarwith the one demand—"Give me a Creopara.

dou read all the authorities on the Egyptian Queen, studied Shakespeare's play, and concluded there was nothing in Cleopatra fitted to exhibit the genius of Bernhardt, and so he told the actress. In the meantime, however, other dramatists had heard the appeal, and one day Moreau presented to Bernhardt a manuscript.
"Madame," he said, "I have made a Cleopatra for you. Read it."

The next day she returned the play to Moreau.

"It is very good," she said, "but it is not complete; something is wanting." "What is!!" asked the disappointed author. "Idon't know," was the con-soling answer; "Sardou is the only person who can Moreau took his manuscript to Sardou. The famous dramatist took the play to read, intending simply to give his opinion of it to Moreau, with such suggestions as might occur to him, but he soon saw that Moreau had found what he had failed to discover, a Cleopatra for Bernhardt, and from an adviser of Moreau he became an enthusiastic collaborateur. He rewrote one scene, then another, and finally he dropped Moreau's text altogether, so to speak, in the waste basket, and re wrote the entire play, making a drama in which Moreau no longer recognized his own child. This was precisely what Bernhardt had planned.

"Egypt ""
"Well?" she queried, with one of her sad, sweet

"I don't want to know anything about you, or the contents of that casket. I—I—"

"But it is only right that you should know, Ken neth," she interposed, gently. "You have been very patient—you and your dear people—and I feel it is my duty to acquaint you with my true name, and part, at least, of the story of my life. I shall not be with you much longer, and -I threw myself on my knees beside her couch in an agony of grief.

Don't talk of dying, Egypt! I can't give you up. The words were uttered, and no power on earth ould recall them. She grew white, even to ghast liness, and said, pathetically:

"Not that, Kenneth—not that! Don't let me die with the thought that the cloud which has hung so long over my life has darkened yours."

"There is no cloud!" I exclaimed passionately. "There is no cloud, oh, Egypt, except of pleasand memories, and—shall I say it?—hcpe."

-God forbid! I-I-Listen! My name is Dagmar Banfield, and I am one hundred years old.
Don't look so incredulous! You see, I reckon my age as Father Ryan did-by tears. If I counted the onths since my birth-I am not sure, because it has been so long since I measured my life in that manner—but I think they would make a total of thirty-five years. I have been actress, preacher, lec ther of elocution-in short, almost everyturer, teacher of elocution—in short, almost every-thing. I was left an orphan at an early age, and bravely fought my battle with the world until a few short months ago. One of my old Professors used to call me 'The Child of Inspiration.' But if I ever did possess a divine gift of any kind, it has brought me no success because, instead of driving my are me no success, because, instead of driving my art, I allowed my art to drive me."

She sighed heavily, and the beautiful eyes filled with tears; but she brushed them impatiently away,

"About four years ago I joined a theatrical company, and assumed the leading role in the play 'Camille.' He—he took the part of Armand, my nght my own chamber—unligh the fiful glow of a grate fire-and, sinking into a chair, remained seated there for hours, watching in a dazed fashion, the fantastic shadows that came and went upon the wall. I was too stunned to think. Ever and anon my lips formed the word

"Egypt," but no sound came from them.

Thus the night wore on, and the dawn broke. When the sun was about two hours high its bright rays, streaming in at my window, fell full upon the led lid of the casket, which I still held. At first I watched the glow and sparkle of the gem mechanically; then, with increasing interest, and finally coming to myself with a start, I remem Egypt's words: "Take it—'twill tell you all."

opened it with feverish haste, and tossed th cotton impatiently aside. The first thing that me my gaze was a small photograph case, and, as lifted it up, it came open, revealing the likenesses of three persons. The first was Egypt's; the next that of an infant, evidently taken after death, a the little one was lying on a couch with closed eyes and folded hands; the third was my—my brother's

"Merciful God!" I cried, and my brain recled It was not accident, then, that brought Egypt to our door. My brother Delemere, whom none of us had seen or heard from for years -who, indeed had left our humble home in anger many long years ago-he, then, was the principal actor in the tragedy of Egypt's life! She had come to us because we were his people—come to us broken down in health, utterly destitute. Had we, by our love and kindness, unconsciously repaid some debt which he

A horrible thought burned its way into my brain. I caught up the casket eagerly, and examined the remainder of its contents. Only a few faded flow-ers; a bracelet, with the words: "From Delemere to Dagmar" engraved upon it; a baby's blue knitted sock, and three or four letters. These I opened and sock, and three or four letters. These I opened and read. What a story they contained—the story of a man's perfidy, a woman's shame, a tiny grave and a broken heart! She had loved "not wisely, but too well."

The very merry soubrette whose portrait we preent this week was born at Philadelphia, in 1859 and made her debut on the stage in that city, a what is now the Central Theatre, under the management of the late J. K. Mortimer, during the sea son of 1874, as soubrette in the stock, the next sea-son appearing in the same line of business, at Washinton, D. C., under the management of J. P. Rogers, at the Comique. She was then billed as Katle Howard. This was followed by an engage ment at the National, in that city. The next sea she played a short engagement with Col. Sinn, at the Front Street Theatre, Baltimore, doing a turn of serio comic songs. In the latter part of the same season she returned to the Grand Central, Philadelphia, where she first met her subsequent husband, the well known William Emmett. After their union, she remained in the profession, playing at Tony Pastor's, this city, and other theatre and joining for a short season the Pastor & Leavitt Co. on the road. Leaving that show with her husband, they went to Chicago, where she continued in the stock as leading soubrette, under her husband's management, making the chief hit of her career as Willie the Bootblack, in "The Waifs of New York, a play which her husband purchased from O. B. Collins, and which Mrs. Emmett retains. On the sale of the lease of the Chicago Academy to Daniel Shelby, Mrs. Emmett retired to orivate life, and sel dom emerged therefrom during the life of her hus band. She reappeared before the public at Grenier's Garden Theatre, Chicago, July 11, 1887, as Mary At-wood, in "The New Karl." Mrs. Emmett then decided to again re-enter the profession permanently, and for three years she has been winning new

'Yes, father," answered the guardsman, and he "Command the bravest of my soldiers to come here," said the Prussian king to his servant. A six foot uhlan, with a row of orders across his breast and a scar on his forehead, entered.

"My friend," explained the king, "to show their loyalty a French and a Russian guardsman have jumped at command from that window. Have you the pluck to do the same?"

"Is it for the Fatherland?"

"Then I refuse to do it."

First American Performance of "Dr.

Bill," at the New Garden Theatre. "Dr. Bill," a farce comedy adapted by Hamilton Aide from "Le Docteur Jo-Jo," by Albert Carre (originally acted March 16, 1888, at the Paris Cluny), was seen for the first time in America Sept. 27, at was seen for the first time in America Sept. 27, at the New Garden Theatre, this city, then dedicated to the public, as elsewhere made known in detail.

Mr. Aide's play was first acted at the London Avenue, Peb. 1, 1890, and is still running there. The principal character is Dr. William M. Brown, a young practitioner, who has settled down to domesticity after a busy career as a woman's doctor. Many of his patients have moved in the livelier walks of the drama. In the most agreeable and entertaining of these he has taken a lively interest. He has sufficient income to retire, and has decided to practise no more. The doctor's father in law. Mr. Firman, objects. He believes all young men ought to work, and sends out circulars describing Dr. Brown's eagerness to prescribe for his fellow creatures. During the Doctor's absence the old gentleman has a huge brass plate affixed to the door, inviting consultation. Opposite Dr. Brown in which was a superintendent of police, irritable and Mr. Horton is a superintendent of police, irritable and Mr. Horton is a superintendent of police, irritable and decided of the world and blelengary, believes the Doctor possess of all the virtues. Skeptical Mrs. Horton sends for Dr. Brown to ascertain if he has any of the tendencies she has observed in other practitioners—notably her old friend, Dr. Bill. She is to report to the Doctor's wife the result. But Dr. Brown, when he receives Mrs. Horton has a pense of a firm d. Mr. George Webster, who, I shall pens, was very much taken with Mrs. Brotton that Mrs. Brotton take the only sound is that of a box in the ear. Mrs. Horton tells her where to find the husband. "The Whirlwind."

This society comedy drama, written by Sydney Rosenfeld to the order of Helen Dauvray, was acted for the first time on any stage Sept. 30, at the Standard this city. The plot: Polly Fargus, a young for the first time on any stage Sept. 30, at the Standard this city. The plot: Polly Fargus, a young New York woman of great fortune, business ability and natural independence, is pursued by Robert Brent, a financial schemer, whose capital consists solely of assurance and plausibility. Brent acts in the capacity of broker for Miss Fargus, and is very attitions to obtain the entire control of her millions for the maturing of a vast deal he has on hand, which, if carried through, will bring him into great prosperity, but which involves the credit of one prominent and two minor New York banks. Finding Miss Fargus hard to influence, Brent determines to get the use of her money for his achemes one way or another, and to this end puts up a dummy President for one of his banks, and has the audacity is sell to Miss Fargus the securities of this bank, which he extracts from the vaults. The transaction leaks out, the bank examiners step in Brent is arrested and the prominent New York bank through which the lesser banks have been clearing is drawn into the whirfpool. The President of the bank is a valued criend of Polly Parana; his wise and daughter are her dearest friends, and when she learns througher, who, to raise money for her wise and daughter are her dearest friends, and when she learns througher, who, to raise money for her to the series of the bank in the midst of the run, deposits half a million, and turns the tide, triumphantly saving the bank. Her character, however, has its sweat and womanly side. During the troubles of the bank, it comes to be known the same and that when years before his one word and made the same discovery as berself, he was grown that the midst of the run, deposits half a million, and turns the tide, triumphantly saving the bank. The latest addition to New York's ever increasing Into false addition to New York's ever increasing list of playhouses, the Garden Theatre, situate in the New Madison Square Garden building, was formally dedicated Saturday night, Sept. 27. The inaugural performance is cisewhere treated of in detail. The new house, like the Madison Square Garden structure, of which it is a part, does great credit to the taste of the architects—McKim, Mead & White. It is one of the pretitest theatres in New York, and perhaps in the world. The proseenium opening measures 60ft, by 50ft., and the stage is 80ft. deep and 120ft. wide. The stage is a double one. Solid rock was blasted to a depth of twenty-five feet, and will permit of sinking of the scenery. The style of the theatre is of the time of Louis XVI, has been carried out in the architecture, decoration and draperies, and is suggested in the drop curtain, which is a copy by Henry E. Hoyt of Boldini's planting. "The Park of Versailles in the Time of Louis XVI." In the foreground a child and dog are playing, and a lady's sedan chair has just been set down by its bearers. Beside these are other figures in gay aftire, and in the background is a group of Psyche and Cupid, a mossy bank and trees. A feature of the theatre is its proseculum arch. It has been brought forward to the boxes, six in number which will give those in the audience the feeling that all are near the stage. The entire framing of the arch is elaborate and handsome. The proseculum frame is of gold. Just above it is a spirited and artistic representation of "The Angel of Fame," in papier mache, executed by Pailip Martiny, a young Italian sculptor. Five naked cherubs surround the figure of Fame. Just below, and lining the top of the proseculum opening, are trophies emblematical of music, comedy and tragedy. On each of the six proseculum boxes are festions of papier mache are in permanent form. They are in reite, alumned a manufacture of the decrations of papier mache are in permanent form. "Vesper Bells," by H. Wayne Ellis, received its first production on any stage, at Music Hall, Norristown, Pa., Sept. 19, by the Gray & Stephens Co. The plot of the story is an old one, and has often served the dramatist. It is the child helreas whose abduction is attempted, and ev. n her life is in danger from the villain who desires to enjoy her property. The villain is thwarted in every instance, as is not always the case in real life, but meets with the more hearty approval of the audience. Robert Pendy is the guardian of Lella, his nice, and helreas to the Davidson estate. George Davidson, Le'la's uncle on her father's side, is a spendthrift and agambler. With the sid of his clerk, he seeks to get Lelis out of the way, and thus acquire the Davidson estates. First they seek to abduch her, then drown her on the coast of France, and finally steal her away in the mountains of Switzerland. All these events take place during the travels of Lelia's guardian, who is accompanied by Jesse Godfrey, who shows her fondness f. - horses and dogs, and her ability in thwarting the efforts of Davidson and saving her traveling companion, Grace Osborne, from becoming the wife of George Davidson and saving her traveling companion, Grace Osborne, from becoming the wife of George Davidson her handsome dogs, trained by W. "A Trip to Chinatowa."

At the Powers Grand Opera House, Decatur, Ill., Sept. 18, Chas. H. Hoyt's farce comedy, "A Trip to Chinatown," was successfully acted, for the first time on any stage. The scene is laid at San Francisco, and the play presents the gay side of life. Tony and Rashleigh Gay, wards, and Isabella Dane and Wilder Knights, guests of Ben Gay, a wealthy bachelor, want to go to a masquerade ball, and plan "a Irip to Chinatown," in order to get out. Mrs. Guyer, a widow, has been asked to chaperon the party. She writes a note of acceptance, addresses it to R. Gay and appoints "The Balloon," a bon ton restaurant in the vicinity of the ball room, as a meeting place. Firt, her naid, gives the note to Slavin Payne, a servant in the Gay mansion, who hands it to B. Gay. The old gentieman thinks the note is intended for him. He readily gives his consent for the young people to visit Chinatown, and urges bis old friend and schoolmate, Welland Strong, who has just arrived at San Francisco, to arcompany them. The second act oppans in the cafe, where the mesquerading party are baving a joly time, while there is a superior of twice of the proper stream of the supper for twith a private and the vidow, who have received to leave, but is intercepted by the proprietor. "Mary Lincoln, M. D." Charles Barnard's four act drama of New England life, "Mary Lincoln, M. D.," had its first hearing on any stage Thursday afternoon, Sept. 25, at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre. "Mary Lincoln, M. D.," is the first stage type of the female physician. Mr. Barnard has made her a very serious woman, mature, deliberate, repressed, but always a woman of tact and tenderness. Returning to her old farm home for a Summer visit, successful in practice and happy at heart, for an engagement ring sparkles on her linger, she is coldly welcomed by her sour visaged stepmother, the second wife of her dead father. The farm is a cheerless home for Dr. Mary's stepsisters, Eliza and Matilda, and Eliza, a foolish but pretty girl, is already preparing to fly from it with a lover from the city. That lover is the betrothed of Dr. Mary, whose woes thus start early and in the most singular manner. Simultaneous with the elopement of Eliza comes the discovery by Dr. Mary that her own mother is not dead, after all. She had suffered from mistaken identity, had passed many years in an asylum and had in the end been restored to reason and to memory. The gloom rettles thick over the old Lincoln farm in Pequash valley after that. Eliza returns ruined, repentant and unmarried, and with the sortow at her own heart, the wrongs of her seain the oppressiveness. It is at this point that Mr. Barnatic heart way, as it generally does 'n dramatic complications so hopelezsly tangled. NEW YORK CITY. Review of the Week .- A quartet of novelties gave interest to the week of Sept. 22-27. A new and handsome playhouse was dedicated; an English comedy was introduced to America; a French one in a new English dress was put forward, and, fin-ally, an offering by a native dramatist was tested at a special matinee. The week's houses were gen-erally large, thanks to cool and clear weather such as delicated the three-second control of the special matine. as delights the theatregoer The new GARDEN as delights the theatregoer......The new GARDEN THEATRE may be set down at once as a delight to the eye and a charm to every artistic sense. In its delicate decorations, its comfortable arrangements and its manifold advantages it has no peer in all the town's long list of playhouses; and if the entertainments shall be chosen carefully and given with the perfection demanded by the first class audiences who will chiefly support this theatre, its future will assuredly be brilliantly successful. We do not en who will chiefly support this theatre, its future will assuredly be brilliantly successful. We do not en tertain the slightest fear that its location will be a bar io its popularity. The Lyceum long ago overcame that same objection, and, besides, the rapidly increasing modes of transit will ultimately render the Garden Theatre almost as easily accessible as any Broadway house. The audience on the opening night (Saturday, Sept. 27) contained a large proportion of the modish element, with the usual sprinkling of habitual first nighters. Most of the choice seats had been sold at auction 22, and there were no vacant places anywhere when Mr. Hoyt's handsome vacant places anywhere when Mr. Hoyt's handsome drop curtain arose on the first act of "Dr. Bill."
This farcial comedy, adapted by Hamilton Aide from Albert Carre's French success, "Le Docteur Jo-Jo," was then acted for the first time in America, for which country it is owned by French & Son, under whose management the new playhouse is to be conducted. With the strongest expectancy of a long run, T. Henry French had engaged this expensive cast: William Brown, M. D. (Dr. Bill), W. A. Lackaye; Mr. Firman, J. W. Jennings; George Webster, J. B. Polk: Mr. Horton, George Becks; Baggs, Graham J. Henderson: Police Sergeant, J. Mathew; Mrs. Brown, Isabella Evesson; Mrs. Firman, Mrs. Louisa Eldridge; Miss Firman, Jane Grafton; Ellen, Louise Allen; Miss Fauntieroy, Edith Howard; Mrs. Horton Aller: Miss Fauntieroy, Edith Howard; Mrs. Horton, Sadie Martinot. This cast served for the American debut of Miss Kenward and the reappearance on our stage, after an absence of several years, of Sadie Martinot. On another page we give a synopsis of the plot, as well as the record of the foreign productions, of "Dr. Bill," and we also print a detailed description of the new theatre. It only remains to be said here that the play met with a fair degree of favor—not enough to justify calling it a hit, and yet sufficient so make it probable that a fairly good run sufficient to make it probable that a fairly good run will be made. The material seems to be too trivial though it is handled with much skill. Miss Mar tinot, attired in ravishing costumes, was warmly welcomed, and gave a very sprightly performance Miss Kenward, who was in the London cast of "Dr Bill," is an actress of much ability, and will be liked by our public. Mr. Lackaye, Mr. Polk, Mr ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—Evenly good results have attended the city engagement of the Hanlon-Volter & Martinetti Combine. The specialists and pantominists terminate their occupancy of this house Oct. 2, and will at once transfer their paraphernalis to Chicago, where they begin a week's engagement 5. During the two days of ensuing darkness benman Thompson will complete the extensive preparations incident to the return of "The Old Homestead," 5, when the fourth city season of the familiar old New England play will be inaugurated. A first glimpse of the elaboration bestowed on Uncle Joshua Whitcomb's new scenery will be afforded 5, when Rev. T. De Witt Talmage will commence a series of religious services, to be continued throughout the remaining Sunday evenings this year Grand Museum.—Manager Geo. W. Fursman reports large crowds the past week. The attractions booked are of the best, and those in charge of the Grand hope to make the season the best the house has ever had. Prof. E. G. Johnson is the feature in the curio hall. Other features on the bill are Will Power (mesmerist), Valentine Erricson's "L'Aphrodite," the Venetian Troubadours, Lillie Tobin (glasseater), Master Akers (contortionist), J. Darington (skeleton), the South Sea Islanders and Prof. Aaron Lee (fortune teller). Upper stage—Percy and Hanly, Greenfield and Ward and Daly. Lower stage—W. M. Paul, supported by the stock, in "That Man from Chicago." Geo. France and wife are no longer in the stock.

The nst of pallbearers at Dion Boucleault's Jennings and the veteran Becks contributed their share in the good work. The Miss Grafton in the cast is, we believe, Jane Goodman, a Philadelphia amateur, and this was her professional debut. She had an unimportant role. The farce was staged with all the expensive elaboration and good taste of a Daly Theatre society comedy.....A trial perform ance, the first on any stage, of "Mary Lincoln, M D.," by Charles Barnard, filled PROCTOR'S TWENTY D., "by Charles Barmard, nied Procestors I was structured by the Barmard of the Barmard of the Barmard we make known the story of this sombre New England drama, and give its full cast. Its test at Proctor's did not reveal it as a likely success, though by no means is Mr. Barnard to be charged with an absolute failure. He has made a decided departure from most of the artifices of the theatre in this play, which is narrative, rather than dramatic; indeed, even at moments when the conventional emotions might have been both justiflable and effective, his actors, doubtless by ex press instruction, repressed all display of passion or force. The play thus became a cold and color or force. The play thus became a cold and color-less story, unrelieved even by its comedy, which was quaint and original. In a radically revised form "Mary Lincoln, M. D.," may do; but in its present shape Mr. Barnard will find it unsaleable, and we fancy that, though the trial performance was at his risk, he will not care to assume the responsi-bility of a tour. In the cast Mary Shaw, Mrs. E. A-Eberle, Thomas J. Herndon, J. E. Kellerd and Grace Filkins did intelligent and careful work, though all ware hampered by the emotional limitations set by

of this house.

It was currently reported last week that Prof.
Worth had succeeded, after many vexatious delays, in procuring a license for his new museum, and would open the place on Sept. 29. It turned out, however, to be a faise report, though the indications are favorable that the license will soon be leaved.

DION BOUCICAULT'S will was, on Sept. 26, sent by Clark Bell to the Surrogate's office, and offered for probate. The document was executed March 17, 1887, and Mrs. Louise Thorndyke Boucicault is sole legatee. Agnes Robertson, Mr. Boucicault's former wife and his widow, according to the decision of the English courts, arrived on the Servia 28, Her causel said that the will will not only be fought on the ground that Agnes Robertson is Mr. Boucicault's widow, but the validity of the signature itself will be contested. He declined to make further explanations regarding this sistement. According to Clark Bell, the estate is a small one. Agnes Robertson's connsel, however, alleges that the dramas of the dead playwright alone are worth many thousands of dollars.

Miner's Eighth Avenue Theatre.—Relly & Wood's Co. moved over from the East to the West side of town, and opened here to the largest house of the season sept. 29. The show is the strongest and most complete ever given by this management. The merits of the different acts were fully commented upon in our last issue. This enterprising firm of managers have the credit of playing to the largest tweek's business ever known in the history of this house.

Boston .- Genial Business Manager McGlenen's Boston.—Genial Business Manager McGlenen's smile broadened as he said to me on Saturday night Sept. 27: 'Just look at the house!' And such a house! As I looked in the curtain was just down on an act, and the upturning of the electric light showed the Boston's big auditorium without a vacant chair—save those emptied by gentlemen who had occasion severally to "see a man." And so it has been during the as yet brief run of 'The Soudan." Not for many seasons has this grand old house been so persistently packed by lovers of speciacular melodrama. CARDS.

J. M. G., Peoria.—Our roply referred to, brief as it was, fully explained the attuation. We repeat, when a player verbally acknowledges his opponent's hand "good," tereby assigning to it a superior wales he will be repeated to the proper and consistent methods of play, and prevent fraudulent practices. If your plan should be generally recognized, there would be nothing to fluider a dishonest player from helping himself to the discards, or to the original deck, as for that matter, thus enabling him to make up a hand to suithinself, while his opponent is busy gathering in the pot that had been legally acknowledged as his. Your claim that each hand should show for itself is perfectly proper. Indeed, that is one of the fundamental principles of poker; but where a player divergands that principle, by declaring his opponent shand to be the superior, instead of allowing the cards to do their own taking, it is then that the rule first cited takes effect. Your last statement, containing the word "thind," suggested the statement, containing the word "thind," suggested the proper in the proper when it comes to making verbatim duplicates. R. C. Chadsey, whose portrait is here presented, one of the most youthful amateur athletes who forty yards, in half an hour. On Feb. 5, 1890, he is one of the most youthful amateur athletes who has gained distinction in this country. He was has gained distinction in this country. He was born at Warren, Muss., on Sept. 8, 1871, and has therefore just turned his nineleenth birthday. Notwithstanding that, and the further fact that he has been before the public but little over a year, he has won several good races, and now bolds a silver cup which he won in a race announced as for the championship of the National Guard, it being within the ranks of the N. G. that he has gained the victories he has to his credit. He joined the Ninth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., on Sept. 23, 1889, for a term of five years, and two days later he won a twenty-five mile race announced to be for the championship of the National Guard of the States of New York and New Jersey. It was run on boards, bare, the track being a fourteenth of a mile in circumference, eight starting, and the winner's time being 3th 35m. On the 13th of December following, at the indoor games held at the armory of the Ninth Regiment, Chadsey and F. V. Torres ran a forty yards, in half an hour. On Feb. 5, 1890, he was the only starter in a three mile race, open to all National Guardsmen in the United States, and announced as for the championship of the Guard, at games held by Company H. Thirteenth Regiment, and the Nautius Boat Club, at the armory, in Brooklyn. Chadsey was advertised on the programmes to attempt to beat the record of the N. G. for the distance (Indoor), which he did, running the first mile on a thirteen lap board track in 5m. 5s., two miles in 10m. 40s., and the full distance in 10m. 1835s. Subsequently Chadsey issued a challenge to run any National Guardsman of four months enlistment from three to fiteen miles for any trophy that might be agreed upon. He now resides at Stamford, Ct., and is a member of the Fourth Connecticut Regiment, but in the matter of racing shoes he is still partial to the make of H. H. Klife, of Brooklyn, whose advertisement frequently appears in our bust ness columns.

The members of the different Turn Vereins belonging to the Turn Bezirk enjoyed their annual featival and championship competitions at Washington Park, this city, on Sunday and Monday, Sept. 21, 22. The weather on the first day was beautiful, and the gathering at the grounds was immense, and although there were threatening clouds overhead on the following day, and a smart shower of rain fell during the afternoon, the unfavorable conditions did not deter many from attending. The competitions embraced, besides the customary field and track sports, gymnastic exercises of various kinds, in which our German fellow citizens as a rule excet. The affair was well managed, and was in all respects successful. A summary of the contests follows:

More New Hecords.

The 'cyclists who remained at Peoria, Ill., after the lose of the annual lace meet again attacked the reords on Tuesday, Sept. 16. The weather was not quite cords on Tuesday, Sept. 16. The weather was not quite so favorable as on the preceding day, nevertheless some remarkable performances were accomplished. The first record attacked was the unicycle record at five miles, which Bert Myers, the local man, lowered from 19m, 55s, to 18m, 56%, After Myers' attempt, C. E. Kinge had a go at the safety record of 2m, 53s,, but wind interfered with him, and be could do no better than 2m, 37%, iteing the record at the half, Im, 13½s,, and at the three quarters, Im 51%.

H. E. Laurie next attempted to beat the pneumatic tired safety record of 2m, 32½s, made by himself at Hartford. He rode the quarter in 35½s, beating, the old record of 3m. The half mile was covered in in, 15½s, the previous record below in, 19s. At the three quarter Laurie cut the record from Im, 56s, to 1m, 54½s, and at the mile is cut his record of 2m, 37½s, and at the third fastest mile ever risiden on any form of cycle.

Laurie cut the record from im. 88s. to 1m. 51%, and at the mile he cut his record of 2m. 37%, to 2m. 27%, which is the third fastest mile ever rioden on any form of cycle.

All the state of the day was a trial by Myers and state of Peoria, against the two mile tandem safety record of 5m. 21%, and the two miles in 5m. 15%s. The timers were 8. A. Miles, Chicago, W. B. Troy, New York, and E. B. Hazard, Feoria. Referee, F. H. Prial.

Our latest foreign advices bring accounts of additional slaughtering of old records. On Sept 5, on the occasion of the annual sports of the Printing and Stationery Trades Cricket Association, at the favorite Paddington Recreation Grounds. London. Eng. E. Letten, mounted on a few miles record to 1m. 68s, being three-filths of a second faster than R. J. Mecredy's record. This was done in a contest and without the aid of pacemakers, making the performance decidedly more meritorious than Mecredy's. Afterwards F. J. B. Archer lowered F. J. Oamond's live mile record it or ordinaries, making the distance in 13m. 35%s. On the 8th inst. at the same track, R. A. Lloyd and E. F. Glover beat all the tandem records from a quarter of a mile to a mile, as follow, 4siyds., 45%; 85%ds. in. 21%s. three quarters of a ring quarter in 39%s.

A series of fresh records for grass were piled up by Howard. Archer, Stroud and Osmond at the annual Fall meeting of the Surrey Bicycle Club at Kennington Oval, London, Eng. 8spt. 13. howard commenced by riding three miles in the ten mile scratch race, for ordinary bicycles, in Sim. 18%s. A the same meeting for the Surrey and a series of tresh records for grass were piled up by Howard. Archer, Stroud and Osmond at the annual Fall meeting of the Surrey Bicycle Club at Kennington Oval, London, Eng. 8spt. 13. howard commenced by riding three miles in the ten miles area for a row wheeling for discussion of the Bath Road, Catford and Briston Ramblers Bicycle Clubs, is stated to have beaten the fifty mile tricycle road record by 5m. 4is, his reported time being fa. 4im. 21%.

Rockland County Wheelmen.

Hockland County Wheelmen. The members of this organization held their annual Fall races at Spring Valley, N. Y., Sept 26. The meet took place on the half mile trotting track, which was very muddy, interiering greatly with the work of the crack wheelasts who took part in the contests, and preventing fine performances. Summary:

Road Racing in Pennsylvania.

The road race over the twenty-one mile course from Myerstown to Reading, under the auspices of the Penn Wheelmen, of Reading, Pa., Sept. 2), proved to be a very successful bicycle event. Several hundred wheelmen were present from adjoining attests the read and given an opportunity to view the race from the line of the Reading Railroad, which parallels the course to a point close to Reading, where the visitors were driven to the finish in time to see the victor arrive. The previous best frecord for this course was 1h. 15½m, and was held by W. I. Wilhelm, of Reading, in this race no less than seven of the starters broke the record. The following were the positions of the riders at the finish, and the time made by each: W. Van Wagener, Newport, R. I., th. 7m.; W. C. Seeds Wilmington, Del., lh., lbm., Charles Murphy, New York, lh. 12u.; M. Follenberger, Harriaburg, Pa., lh. 18m.; W. H. Wells, Broodlyn N. Y., lh. 18m.; W. R. Wbitner, Charles Kupch, J. 14m.; Grubb referee; judges, J. Howard Jacobs and C. C. Graeff; timers, Geo. K. Wbitner, Charles kiugs, broke his wheel after going about five miles, and was compelled to drop out of the race. He will, however, with the assistance of local wheelmen as pace makers, make an official run over the same course bept. 27 with a view of lowering the record made by Van Wagoner. The race, the first held under the auspices of the Fenn Wheelmen, attracted crowds of spectators, and was a most successful beginning. The prise were numerous and costly, approximating in value close to $1.000.

The pneumatic tyred machines are carrying everything The pneumatic tyred machines are carrying everything before them across the water. At the Birmingham Charity Sports, held Aug. 30, the wheels so tyred were handleapped twenty-five yards in a haif mile and fitty yards in a mile, which, however, proved insufficient. If, wilkinson carrying off both the safety handleaps easily. The limit for the mile has been raised as high as seventy lards, and yet the machines with the pneumatic tyre sweep the deck. Still pensilising appears to be the only way to place them on an equality with solid tyred machines. At the games of the Spartan Harriers, Aug. 34, F. J. Osmond won his heat in the mile event (pensilised 70yds.) in 2m. 50s., thus creating another new record, but he did not start in the final.

Manager Loftus, of the Cincinnati Cub, will likely take a team to California next Winter. He has a proposition from Captain Comiskey, of the Chicago Ciub, of the Players' League, to take charge of one team and accompany him to California. McPhee, Harrington and Rhines, and one or two other members of the Cincinnati team, will likely make up the party. The members of the Chicago team of the Players' League, will also go. The two teams will go West together, playing exhibition games on the way out at Dubuque, Omaha, Kansas City, Denver, Sait Lake City, Les Angeles and other points. They will leave about Nov. 1.

The Cincinnati team, of the National League, will disband Oct. 4. This will be the closing day of the championship season. The management of the club promised the members of the team last Spring, if they would report for practice duty about the middle of March, they would be excused from remaining with the club after the close of the champiouship season until the last of November. After the closing game, oct. 4, the players will be privileged to go where they please. It is likely, however, that they will reorganize as an independent organization.

It is said that the management of the Syracuse Club has telegraphed to the different clubs in the country offering any or all of its players for sale. The directors declare that they are willing to continue a ball club in the International League or a similar organization, but will not remain in the American Association. There are several good men in the Syracuse Club, but none equal to Childs, who is a heavy hitter and one of the best fielders in the club.

The game between the Staten Island Athletic and Cricase Clubs, Sept. 27, at West New Brighton, S. L. was postponed on account of rain. This virtually puts an end to the championship season and gives the Staten Island Athletic Club the pennant of the Amateur League. The eight leading batmen of their respective clubs in the Players' League, are Orr, of Hrooklyn; Brouthers of Boston; O'Rourke, of New York; Shindle, of Philadelphiu; Beck'ey, of Pittaburg; Browning, of Cleveland; Wise of Buildo; Ryan, of Chicago.

An eleven inning game was played Sept. 12 at Oakland, Cal, the home team then deteating the visiting Stock ton Club by a score of 7 to 6. Cantillion accepted all of seventeen chances at second base, putting out ten men and assisting seven times.

Cincinnati vs. New York.

These clubs contended for the eighteenth time, Sept. 27, at Cincinnati, the New Yorks then securing their sixth victory of the series. Mullane was batted with ease, especially in the fourth, sixth and eighth innings, when the visitors bunched seventeen safe hits and scored fifteen runs, only seven of which were earned. Glasscock led in batting, making six successive singles. Welch was very wild, sending four men to base on balls in one inning. He received perfect support, however, and the eight hits made off him were widely scattered. Glasscock also distinguished himself in fielding, accepting all of ten chances at short stop.

Chicago vs. Boston.

The seventeenth game was played, Sept. 27, at Chicago, the home team then scoring their ninth viccago, the home team then scoring their into vic-tory of the series. Luby kept the Bostons from making more than four safe hits, one of which was a home run by Smith that saved a shut out. Get-zein was poorly supported, and by wild pitching helped the home team to two of their runs. Long and Smith made coatly errors. The only run earned by the Chicagos was a home run by Burns in the eighth inning.

Andrew N. Rankin, who died of a stroke of apoplexy Sopt. 24 at Philadelphia, was the father of W. M. Mankin, of THE CLIPTER, and A. R. (June) Rankin, of The Xee York World. Adels Rankin, the well known elecution ist, is one of his four surviving daughters. He was well known to the amateur fraternity of Brooklyn, being a amiliar figure at Prospect Park for several seasons. The deceased, who was a well known and highly respected resident of Jamaica, L. I., was residing temporarily at Philadelphia, where the city officials were engaged in testing an improvement in the method of Joining from pipa, one of the many important inventions he had made of late years in the realm of mechanics. In early life he was a member of the legal profession and afterwards was a common at Chambersburg, a., and Sept. 37 at he residence of his some. M. N. Rankin—at Brocklyn, and the remains were interred in Greenwood Cemetery. He had temporarily resided of late years in Philadelphia and Baltimore, where he had many friends, who will hear with regret of his demise.

With their defeat of Sept. 29 the Pittsburgs, of the National League, broke the unenvisible record made last year by the Louisville Club, of the American Association. The latter lost Ill games, while the Pittsburgs up to Sept. 29 have sustained 12 defeats. Hecker has played in more losing games in the last two seasons than any other man in the profession. He was with the Louis villes last year and with the Pittsburgs this.

Chicago vs. Philadelphia,

Chicago vs. Philadelphia,
The eighteenth game was played, Sept. 24, at Chicago, the home team then evening up the victories in the series. The visitors started off with the lead, scoring two runs in the first inning off singles by Griffin and Wood and a double bagger by Mulvey. King kept them from making more than two safe hits and they failed to score during the remainder of the contest. The home team tied the score in second inning, when they bunched four singles. It remained a tie until the ninth inning, when a safe hit by King and a wild throw by Milligan allowed the home team to make the two winning runs. Bastian was hurt in the third inning, and gave way to barling. to Darling.

BILLIARDS.

GEO. F. SLOSSON will commence this week to make important alterations in his rooms at Broadway and Twenty-second Street. The cafe underneath his rooms, which has been under other management, now comes under his control through a long lease. None of the old fixtures will be retained, but everything will be new from floor to ceiling, and those who know Mr. Slosson's iberal ideas in fitting up and furnishing the many rooms which he has controlled look forward to a model establishment when it is completed. Through removing the bar from the billiard room floor added space will be acquired, which will be devoted to a private room, with one table for matches or exhibitions, and the change will also allow the putting in of one more public table, making twenty in all on the main floor. There are also other improvements intended, looking to the comfort of the patrons of this popular resort, a full description of which will be hereafter given.

Hefele Reats Miller.

In the case of David Miller vs. F. W. Hofele, the former suing for the rec. very of two prises won by him in Germany and turned over to Hofele in accordance with a previous agreement between the parties, Judge McKeon greaters and the secondance with a previous agreement between the parties, Judge McKeon fora, retains the trophies. It appears that before the recent shooting isstitual in Germany Miller, in consideration of Hofele paring his passage there and back and giving ten dollars weakly to his family during his absence, agreed to hand over to the latter all the prises he won while away, which he did, but sought to recover two of them, hence the suit. Comrade Hofele paid out over $500 for Miller and his family, and the instrinsic value of the trophies falls considerably below that sum; Frank Class, of Pine Brook, N. J. and Fred Lumbreyer of Larchmont, N. Y., shot a pigeon match at the Westchester Fair Grounds, White Flains, N. Y., Sept. B. The conditions were to shoot at one hundred live birds each, at thirty yards rise fifty yards boundary, under the Hutlingham rules, for $250 a side, and the match was won by Class by a rocer of $10 to S. It will be remember was fine and about three hundred persons gathered to see the contest.

INTERNATIONAL GLOVE FIGHT.

Frank Slavin Knocks Out Joe McAuliffe in the Second Round.

In our last issue appeared the information that on Sept. 2 the police interfered with the arrangements for the glove contest between Joe McAuliffe, the "Mission Boy," of San Francisco, Cai., and Frank Slavin, who claims the championship of Australia, which was fixed to come off at the hall of the Ormonde Club, in London, Eng., on the following night, the principals being placed under $5,000 bonds each to keep the peace for at least twenty-four hours. Upon being arraigned in court on the following day, the justice decided to liberate them under bonds in the same amount to appear before him if called upon, it being understood that in case any breach of the peace occurred they could be apprehended and sent before a judge for trial. Fresh arrangements for the contest were then made, it being announced that instead of thirty, as originally agreed upon, the fight would be limited to fifteen rounds, and larger gloves than those originally selected should be used. The purse was to remain the same, $5,000, with the further understanding that if the police broke up the fight each principal should receive the sum of $1,500. It was arranged that the battle should come off at the Ormonde Clubearly on the morning of Saturday, Sept. 27. The price of tickets to see the encounter was steep, and the gathering to witness it was composed of the better class of sporting men and actions of the Australian, 22 to 20 and 55 to 50 being on offer, with not much business doing, for the reason mainly that he Americans present were few in number, and most of McAuliffe's partiasns already had on all the money they felt disposed to risk on his chances. The latter had the advantage in height and reach by several inches, and he sealed it was as and, 2041b, while Slavin's weight was stated to be 185tb. ATHLETIC.

Yankees Win Canadian Championships The representatives of the States who participated in the annual games for the amateur champion-The representatives of the States who participated in the annual games for the amateur championship of the Dominion, held at the grounds of the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 27, swept all before them, John Owen Jr., of the Detroit Athletic Club, taking the two sprinting events, and the first prizes in the other contests forming the programme being divided up between the teams from the Manhattan and New York Athletic Clubs of this city. This, however, was not an unusual or an unexpected occurrence, as "we've all been there before," and our friends over the border are used to seeing their trophics carried away. The team of the Satford Harriers, who arrived from England on the 24th, took part in some of the events, butowing to the shortness of the period that had elapsed since their arrival they were not in condition to do themselves anything like justice, consequently their abilities cannot be rightly judged from the chararacter of their performances on this occasion. Unfortunately, the weather was not of the sort that is conductive to first class performances, and the rain that fell during the morning made the track soft and slippery, but the conditions failed to reduce the attendance below about four thousand. The crack athletes sent from the States proved their quality by beating nearly every Canadian record during tag afternoon, but the only world's record excelled was that at throwing the 56th weight, the credit for which went to J. S. Mitchell, the famous Celita athlete. Afterwards C. A. J. Queckberner made a cast of almost three feet further in an exhibition throw, showing that, had he remembered the fact that according to Canadian rules performers are allowed but three trials instead of the customary half dozen, he might easily have beaten the record and taken the troppy. The other star performance was that of H. L. Williams and A. F. Copland in the 120yds, hurdier race, they making a dead heat in 16s. which equals the record, in running off the te Williams won by a ya ship of the Dominion, held at the grounds of the Amateur Sports in California.

Athletic games given by the California State Agri-cultural Society, under the auspices of the Pacific Coast A. A. A., were held on the mile trotting track Coast A. A. A., were held on the mile trotting track at Sacramento on Sept. 17. The games were the first of the kind ever held in Sacramento, and consequently attracted a large number of spectators. The track was in very poor condition, having been heavily watered in the morning for the horse races that were to take place in the afternoon. The Olympic and Alpine Athietic Clubs of San Francisco both sent up large teams to compete, the Olympics capturing most of the events. P. D. Skitlman, well known in New York, ran under the Olympic's colors and easily won the 8804s. scratch run, but did not come up to his bausl form in the second mile handicap, owing to the heavy condition of the track. About Rowdon's Jump.

The latest issue of London Land and Water to hand thus accounts for the recent seemingly wonderful performance of the former English amateur champion at the high jump; "We have heard some particulars of t. W. Rowdon's Haytor Camp jump of over 5it. Sin, done in the first week in August. The ex-amateur high jump champion, who now seems to demand a money payment for his exhibitions at the different local sports, appears always to jump at a height from a small spring block raised seven inches from the ground at the broad end. Thus seven inches must be taken off all his jumps plus the spring of the board."

Thus seven inches must, be taken off all his jumps plus the spring of the board.

A CROWD TO SEE THE "NIGHT OWLS" AT THE LONDON.

"The Night Owls" began an engagement at the London Theatre yesterday and played to the capacity of the house at the matince and evening performances. It is one of the best variety companies on the road, and is always accorded a hearty metropolitan welcome. This year it is, if anything, better than ever.

"Our Social Club" was the first sketch on the long bill. It was rather better than first parts usually are, and the dialogue was particularly witty. Dave Foster, Lillian Granger. Edward Nibbe, Fanny Lewis, M. E. Nibbe and Rhemo Nelson, sustained the principal parts. Catchy songs, lively dances and a shapely chorus, were the features that helped to make "Our Social Club" a go. Then came that quaint comedian. Sam Barnard, in his funny sayings and imitations. When the audience, from sheer exhaustion, ceased apparatic, Learn, and Fanny Lewis, a covered apparatic, Learn, and Fanny Lewis, a covered apparatic, Learn, and Fanny Lewis, a covered apparatic, tearn, interesting the continuous continuous continuous and provided the continuous continuous

SEE WHAT THE COLUMBUS PAPERS SAY. ONLY A FEW LINES FROM 7 COLUMNS :

S. R. O. sign being displayed 25 minutes before the cure.—COLUMBUS DISPATCH, AUG. 29.

The initial presentation of "The Limited Mail" act until it fell, the audience was simply crazy.

Never before in the history of the drama in Golumbus has a play been received with such wild enthusiasm .- COLUMBUS PRESS, AUG. 29.

The house was packed from pit to dome the received with unbounded enthusiasm by the audi and anxious to stand, if by so doing they could last night was a grand triumph. It is one of the eatch an occasional glimpse of the stage. From the most intensely interesting and cleverly wrought time the curtain went up at the opening of the first productions that has ever been seen in this city.—

The spacious Metropolitan was packed from or-chestra to gallery last night to witness the first pro-duction of "The Limited Mail." The lines are bright A pronounced and instantaneous hit. The realistic effects are wonderful in the extreme, and were LUMBUS POST, AUG. 29.

Opened at Heuck's, Cincinnati, Sunday, Aug. 31, for one week. Actual receipts $7,160. Refer to JAS. E. FENNESSEY.

AND THE CINCINNATI GREAT DAILIES FALL IN LINE :

"The Limited Mail" met with an enthusiastic reception.—CIN. ENQUIRER, SEPT. 1.

"The Limited Mail" will be one of the popular hits of the present season.—CIN. ENQUIRER,

"The Limited Mail" actually packed Heuck's rain last night.—CIN. ENQUIRER, SEPT. 4. "The Limited Mail" has made a big hit at Heuck's; the mechanical effects are alone "worth the price of admission."—CIN. TIMES-STAR, SEPT. 1. "The Limited Mail" has "caught the town." Heuck's was packed again last night.—CIN. COM'L GAZETTE, SEPT. 3.

Heuck's, standing room only last night; attraction The Limited Mail."-CIN. COM'L GAZETTE,

One of the most successful weeks ever known in the history of Heuck's Opera House. "The Limited Mail" is full of thrilling interest. It abounds in in cidents, both comical and serious, that cannot fail to provoke applause. Its situations and climaxes are not only artistically arranged, but are so dra-matic as to win the approval of the critics, as well as the public. Mr. Vance has in this new play : positive theatrical success, and unless the knowing ones are off in their reckoning, he will achieve through it, not alone a position as a dramatist, but a fortune as well. It is a play that will commend it self to the discriminating votaries of the drama and call the public to its performance again and again—CIN. COM'L GAZETTE, SEPT. 7.

Indianapolis, English's, Sept. 8, 9, 10, heavy rain during entire engagement, actual receipts, $2,218.75; Sept. 11, 12, 13, one night stands, $1,612; Sept. 14-20, one night stands, no matinees, receipts $3,838.10.
